

Dr. Korin Rasmussen, DC

Dr. Korin Rasmussen is a board certified Chiropractic Physician and Craniosacral Therapist who focuses on whole family care. She graduated from UC San Diego with a degree in Physiology and Neuroscience in 1994, with the intention to go on to Bastyr University to pursue a degree in Naturopathic Medicine with an emphasis in pediatrics. Following a car accident in 1995, she began seeing a chiropractor and realized she had found her calling.

After graduating from University of Western States in 2000, she started her own practice and began helping the community at large. She had great interest in pediatrics and babies, yet received little to no instruction or practicum on pediatrics in school, so she fell into general practice using traditional chiropractic techniques.

She began studying Craniosacral therapy, and using it in her practice, gradually adding more and more gentle modalities to my toolbox. She then began to focus on pregnancy, postpartum, birth and pediatric care, including newborns with reflux, torticollis, plagiocephaly, tongue tie and other feeding related issues. Following the birth of her second child, she was forever changed when she first put her to breast, as she was clearly tongue and lip tied. She was eventually released (after much bodywork and lactation support) and went on to nurse successfully for 2.5 years. She also had severe gastric distress, possible silent reflux and struggled to ever crawl. She was truly one of Korin's greatest teachers along this journey. Her younger sister came along (a preemie, and also severely tied) to teach her that anyone can end up with postpartum mood disorder, and again taught her more than any book could (and she's still nursing at almost 4 years old.)

In her private practice, she spends more than 70% of my days with dyads with nursing issues, reflux, gastrointestinal problems and musculoskeletal issues. She is lucky to be able to also work with their parents during pregnancy, birth, postpartum and on through their parenting journey, as a practitioner who has been on both sides of the table. She truly loves her work and is dedicated to advancing parental and professional education and working interactively.
